15 The Chinnaraj Pet Extension is a typical one and contains a due admixture of all classes & conditions of people like officials (as usual) & but the rest follows in course of time as has been exemplified in the case of this Extension It is not a correct assumption that the Extensions are intended only for men of considerable means.

The poor are given every encouragement to build & they are beginning to avail themselves of the opportunity - but their movements are necessarily slow
It should be remembered that as families move out into the extensions more & more rooms are afforded to the poor people living in congested localities & in the bazaars a note by the Sanitary Commr will be valuable on the points raised in the Residency letter

(18)1072 ⊕ hmes have been built in the Islamia area plague began in 1898, an average of 98 annually of these nearly 400 are small buildings occupied by Mahomedan persons - and it may be said that every one of these represents a house vacated in these dangerous localities in the city - for persons in healthy localities would hardly take the trouble & go to the expense of rebuilding in a distant site. The benefit thus conferred was twofold - the individual family was brought safeguards from plague, & the destruction of the house, & its being placed in a sanitary locality, was a great benefit to the locality:

(19) The table shows that as the whole might surround a steady fall in plague cases - except in 1907 when there was an outbreak - & that year only 70 new houses were built in the Islamia

The permanent Evacuation is the best of all remedies for plague + it must in Bangalore city be given a foremost place as a preventive measure — and I attribute the early fall of plague rate in the city to the early adoption of the method of Evacuation. But this of course implies that state is exactly proportionate the total influence for good the Evacuation have had in keeping down the plague in the city — But as Evacuation is all important as a plague measure, + as the Evacuation has been considerable, amounting to about 1/11 of the entire number of occupied houses (taking Population as based on '98), the effect must also have been considerable =

W.L. 23/9 (2) The direct influence on the poor is particularly difficult to estimate but about 600 of them have been evacuated by a direct result of the Evacuations — + the benefit to Mamools + to the Coolies must have been enormous. Great

To

The Dewan of Mysore.

Dated Bangalore, 29th June 1909.

SIR,

I am directed to state that, at the instance of the Advisory Committee for Plague Investigation in India, the Government of India have asked for detailed information as to the influence which the rebuilding operations recently carried out in the Civil and Military Station of Bangalore may have on the prevalence and progress of plague in the area in question and in the immediate neighbourhood.

2. The Resident will be obliged if he can be furnished at an early date with any papers affording similar information regarding similar measures adopted in Bangalore City in ~~continuation~~ connection with the City Extension.

3. Mr. Fraser will also be glad to know whether---- these extensions were mainly intended to provide for the poorer classes who congest the bazaars liable to plague or for persons of more considerable means.

SIR,

Ref:- Government Proceedings No. 290-1/San. 1-09-2 dated the 9th July 1909, calling for information as to the influence which the re-building operations in the Extensions may have had on the prevalence and progress of plague in the Bangalore City.

I have the honour to submit herewith a statement shewing the number of houses built in the Extensions of (1) Chamarajpet, (2) Basavangudi, (3) Malleswaram and (4) Seshadripuram since the first out-break of plague in the year 1898 and to state that as many as 1024 families in all have removed from the congested parts of the old City to the Extensions.

2. The object of the Extensions was and is, of course, to remove congestions in the old City. They are intended both for the poor and the well-to-do classes. A majority of the latter were living as tenants and co-tenants in insanitary houses in the City.

3. A good number of Mahommadan families who were subjected to the periodical visits of plague in the old City have been living in the New Extensions and have ever since been free from the attack of plague. Amongst the Hindus, 333 poor families who were living in the congested localities of the old City have sought relief in the Extensions with similar good result

4. A statement shewing the number of attacks and deaths from plague from the year 1898 is enclosed. The figures show a downward tendency and it may, I think, be safely said that the effect of the New Extensions in checking the prevalence and progress of plague in the City and in the immediate neighbourhood is considerably good.
